EarningsBoost Multiplier

Boost multipliers are available for specific times and locations in-app. With Boost, your base earnings will be multiplied for all trips within a specified Boost zone during specified hours.

How Boost multipliers work

When an earnings Boost is active, you will see a live map on the home page of your Uber Driver app, divided into 12 sections. These 12 sections are the Boost zones.

Each week, Boost will be adjusted based on the:

- Availability of delivery partners; and
- Expected number of trip requests during each time of day.

Boost is a great guide for you to decide when and where to come online to do trips! Getting higher trip requests is as simple as following the higher Boost multiple, both in terms of location and timing!

Understanding

Boost zones

Uber Eats Singapore is split into 12 boost zones:

- Pasir Ris East Geylang
- Punggol North Woodlands
- Bukit Batok Jurong West
- Novena Downtown Bukit Merah

We understand that demand around Singapore varies greatly between areas, even in such a small city.

To help you get a better idea of where to get trip requests, we have created a heatmap (left) depicting the zones where most trips usually start. Darker colours indicate that more trips start in those zones.

Where to go for

High trip requests

>	Geylang Boost Zone
>	Jurong Boost Zone
>	North Boost Zone
>	Novena Boost Zones
>	Pasir Ris Boost Zone

>	West Boost Zone
>	Woodlands Boost Zone
>	Bukit Merah Boost Zone

How is a Boosted trip fare calculated? Do I need to pre-register or book a slot to qualify for Boost? When are Boost multipliers applied? I should come online later in the Boost timeblock since I might receive a backlog order. Does Boost affect other ongoing promotions? Why are there different Boost multipliers for different partners? How do tolls and fees affect Boost? Why didn't I get a Boost? I have a trip that should have qualified for Boost but didn't receive it.
